Walk lasted between 12:00 and 14:15. Tournament Park was closed.

Well, I missed the first Yellow-rumped Warbler of the season. This was week 38 and it had zero probability of being here but there it was, two weeks early. So, chalk it off to climate change, I guess. The record of 27 species was not threatened, as it was very hot, and the hardy band of walkers did well to get 21. Besides the yellow-rumped, the highlight birds were the Nashville Warbler, the Yellow Warbler, and the Western Wood-Pewee. All of those were zero probability of observing and all are very good birds.
